

Johanna Galski Opens the Music Season's Recitals

By Sylvester Rawling.

JOHANNA GADSKI opened the recital season at Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon. She had arrived only in the morning from a rush round trip to San Francisco, where she had substituted for Emmy Destinn (deceased in Austria) in the same part of an open air performance of "Aida." Immediately after the concert, the women said she had to put herself in the hands of a dressmaker, who fitted her with a becoming gown; but although she looked fresh and her manner was gracious as ever, her voice in the beginning seemed tired and she forced it in the classical German songs by Schubert, Schumann and Franz that formed her first group.

After that, in selections more popular than those to which she is accustomed to give us, Mme. Gadski won unequivocal success. In a group of Irish, English, Russian and German folk songs, she was at her best, her "Kathleen Mavourneen" and "Long, Long Ago" justly winning especial favor. A final group of modern songs included a pleasing setting of Stevenson's "Children's Song" by Francis Moore, Mme. Gadski's worthy accompanist at the piano. Besides these were H. C. Gilmore's "Drowsy Poppy" and songs by Brahms and Strauss.

The large audience, which was a bit apathetic at the beginning, soon warmed up and was as insatiable as most recital audiences are in demanding (and getting) extra numbers which included the inevitable (for Mme. Gadski) Valkyrie cry, which she repeated.

While Mme. Gadski was preening her wings at Carnegie Hall yesterday afternoon Evan Williams was entertaining at Aeolian Hall. The favorite tenor gave an object lesson to students by his impressive singing of Handel's "Total Eclipse" and "Vain Is Man," and Mendelssohn's "Be Thou Faithful Unto Death." He was in exceptionally fresh voice and his method, as was followed by the best traditions. Haydn, Bruch, Plietow and Gounod were represented on his programme, which included Liza Lehmann's "Ah, Moon of My Delight" and Coleridge Taylor's "Awake, Beloved," and a group by our own composers, Burleigh, Kramer, Gilbert and Chase. Mr. Gilbert was Mr. Williams's accompanist at the piano.

The Montclair Art Show Opens With Modernism

The Montclair Art Museum has opened its first exhibition of contemporary American paintings, under the directorship of Miss Katherine Innes, formerly of the MacDowell Club, with the work of the modernists. It will be continued until Oct. 16. The catalogue contains twenty-seven well selected numbers.

The modernists, but not the ultra modernists, are given place in the showing, and the suburbanities of Montclair and its vicinity are now given an opportunity to judge for themselves as to how a painting in high key, and in broad judgment, appeals in comparison with the

Check and Abort a Bad Cold

In Five Hours With MENTHO-LAXENE.

You Buy It Concentrated and Mix With Pint of Syrup.

Doubtless every reader recalls having neglected a slight cold until it had settled into a "Bad Cold" and then about 78 hours of distress, discomfort, if not weeks of bronchitis or pneumonia or such. Now, however, if you've had such an experience, and take time by the forelock by preparing to check and abort colds, coughs, catarrh, difficult breathing, watering eyes and painful headaches. It can be done by taking Mentho-Laxene either in its raw state—deep to the throat—or by making a granulated sugar syrup and mixing in a pint bottle or jar. A pint will last a whole family for a long time and keeps every member free from the distressing after-effects of a bad cold. Mentho-Laxene is guaranteed to please or money back by The Blackburn Products Co., Dayton, Ohio, and any well stocked drugstore can supply you. Don't take a substitute. There is really nothing to compare with Mentho-Laxene.—Advt.

academy pictures that crowd the Evans Gallery in the Montclair Art Museum. "Wash House," by Ernest Lawson, which introduces fine color tones, will probably "hit" the local lovers of art. The wide stream which meanders away into the distance of the canvas, with trees lining its banks in their winter denudation, is strong in its pastoral element. At the left are a couple of houses in a color scheme that is eminently high keyed. On the right bank is another house with a brilliant rooftop.

"Mallissa," by Karl Anderson, is a study of a girl in a strikingly composed yellow gown against a green background that is sprinkled with floral units. At the right is a brown dog, half revealed in silhouette. The girl's face and arms and bare, outstretched legs are charmingly executed as to flesh tints. Jonas Lie is represented by two canvases, one of which is called "In the Harbor" and shows a fleet of sailboats with and without set sails. The coloring is boldly accomplished, according to Mr. Lie's custom. "Roses," the other canvas, is wealthy as to coloration. The roses bulk large, and are in rich reds.

The containers, in mottled blue and orange, and the yellow drapery, at the right, are all admirably composed. Robert Henri's "Irish Lad" is painted in colors that are under more restraint than is sometimes the case with this artist, when he lets himself go. The boy of the canvas is very boyish, and the greenish background is more than ordinarily effective as a foil for the youth's ruddy face, partly framed by his Tam-o-Shanter.
